From the Charleston Mercury.]

A serious disturbance occurred at the Charleston jail on Saturday morning in a desperate assault by two of the prisoners upon Mr. John T. Milligan, the jailor, and his saistants, who were about making an examination of the cell in which the prisoners were confined. Mr. Milligan's suspicions had been aroused by an unusual noise in the cell that morning. For the purpose of inspection, he ordered the two prisoners, E. Holden, awaiting trial, and John Gurley, under sentence for larceary, to leave the cell. In complying with this order, Holden dealt Mr. Milligan a severe blow upon the head with a triangular piece of brick slung in the arm of a woosien shirt. Mr. Milligan immediately fired his revolver, but either from the effects of the blow, or from the scuffle which cusued, the pistol dropped before he had disabled his assailant. A desperate struggle then took place between Mr. Milligan, his son, a lad fourteen years of age, the watchman, and a colored prisoner named Miles, on the one part, and Holden and Gurley on the other. By the courage displayed by young Milligan in the defence of his father, who was stunned, and the active assistance of miles, who reduced Holden to quiet by repeated vigorous blows with a broom-handle upon the head, the prisoners were secured and placed in irons.

The deputy sheriff made a thorough examination of the cells in the afternoon. He found a senare hold in the

By the courage displayed by young Milligan in the defence of his father, who was stunned, and the active assistance of this, who reduced Holden to quiet by repeated vigorous blows with a broom-handle upon the head, the prisoners were secured and placed in irons.

The deputy sheriff made a thorough examination of the cells in the afternoom. He found a square hole in the door of the cell occupied by Holden and Gurley, which, by means of an excavation through the masonry, led to an occupied cell directly below. Upon inspection of the cell occupied by Foster, the burglar, who is under sentence of death, (Friday next having been appointed for his execution.) Mr. Dingle found a case knife, with a nicely-sharpened edge, having a finely-cut saw on its lack, and a bottle of oil. This caused closer examine, with the unoccupied cells beneath. Foster acknowledged that it is a Philadelphia case, in which the hady applies for a divorce, her husband and herself having lived together only three weeks.

The case of Wm. H. Aspinwall & d. against Knox county, Indiana, was decided last week. The decision of the Supreme Court sustains that of the district court in a finely-cut saw on its lack, and a bottle of oil. This caused closer examine the point of railroad connection with Clarkewille. Had this discovery not taken place, Foster would undoubtedly have been at liberty by daybreak.

DARING BURGLARY AND ATTEMPT TO MUR-

D'yom the Baltimore Republican, March 24.]

About one o'clock this morning the pastor's residence attached to the church of the Immaculate Conception, on the corner of Ross and Mosher streets, was broken into by some daring robber. In the course of his nefarious dologs, the burglar entered the chamber of the Rev. Mr. Gustiniani, who, upon arising from his bed, was knocked down with a billy or slung-shot, and left insensible upon the floor, while the villain rided his pockets, taking therefrom what money he could find, and also the gold watch of the pastor, which was lying on the table. The Rev. Mr. Quigley, the associate pastor, being in an adjoining room, was awakened by the noise, and got up to inquire what was the matter. Upon going towards his brother's room he met the burglar, who instantly presented a pistol at his breast and demanded his money or his life. Mr. Quigley begged that he might be allowed to go to his chamber for the money. Being allowed to pass, he went into the room of Mr. Giestiniani, and found him lying on the floor weltering in his blood. Seeing a watchman's rattle in the room, Mr. Quigley throw up the window and sprang the rattle with About one o'clock this morning the pastor's residence his blood. Seeing a watchman's rattle in the room, Mr. Quigley threw up the window and sprang the rattle with all his strength. Instantly the vilhain, who v.as waiting for him, fired upon him and fied out of the house. Fortunately Mr. Quigley was not hit, the ball whizzing past him and burying itself in the window-frame by which he was standing. A police officer shortly answered the rattle, but too late to intercept the daring burglar. Rev. Mr. Giustiniani is seriously hurt, and is at present confined to his chamber from the effects of the blows he registed. since writing the above we are informed that the inju ries of the Rev. gentleman are so serious as to cause pai ful apprehensions of a fatal termination.

FLEXIBLE IVORY.

M. Charriere, a manufacturer of surgical instruments in Paris, has, for some time, been in the habit of rendering flexible the ivory which he uses in making tubes, probes, and other instruments. He avails himself of a fact which has long been known, that when bones are subjected to the action of hydrophochloric acid, the phosphate of lime, which forms one of their component parts, is extracted, and thus bones rest in their original form and acquire great flexibility.

M. Charriere, after giving to the pieces of ivory the required form and polish, steens them in acid alone, or in

A. Charriere, after giving to the pieces of vory the re-quired form and polish, steeps them in acid alone, or in acid partially diluted with water, and they thus become supple, flexible, elastic, and of a slightly yellowish color. In the course of drying, the ivory becomes hard and in-ficially again, but its flexibility can at once be restored by wetting it, either by surrounding it with a piece of wet linen, or by placing sponge in the cavities of the places.

THREE MEN SAVED FROM GOING OVER NIAGARA -Three riske Man Saved from doing over Niagara—Three residents of Chippewa, C. W., were crossing Niagara fiver in a sail hoat, last Saturday, just above the rapids, when a high wind caused the boat to capsize. A Niagara boatsoan, named Sullivan, immediately went to the rescue of the men, who were slowly drifting toward the rapids. He contrived to get two of the men into his hoat; the third was towed behind, and made for the shore, which he touched at a point quite low down, harely escaping the swift current next the American shore. The boat in which the men had been went over the Falls.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

INDIOTMENT OF MR. SICKLES BY THE GRAND JUST-THE BAY FIXED FOR THE TRIAL. - It was very evident yesterday morning that the friends of Mr. Sickles were growing impatient of the unusual delay of the District Attorney in sending the indictment to the Grand Jury for their final action, especially as the counsel for the defence have given notice from day to day of their readiness to proceed. During an interval in the proceedings of the nal court yesterday morning, Messrs. Stanton, Chil ton, Magruder, and Batcliffe, accompanied by Mr. Sickles's father, appeared in the court-room, and Messrs. Chilton and Stanton asked leave to inquire through the ourt, of the District Attorney as to when a bill of indictment would be returned by the Grand Jury in their case. in order that counsel, some of whom resided out of this city, might be enabled to be present when it should be returned, in order to arrange the time for the commence-

Judge Crawford stated in reply that the whole matter was in the hands of the District Attorney, who had the right to exercise his discretion as to the proper time for sending the indictment up to the Grand Jury. It was his privilege also to decide the day for trial; but any notion at all in the matter before the bill of indictment should be returned was informal. The court rarely, if ever, interfered with the action of the District Attorney

Mr. Ould stated that he could not see the propriety of counsel making such motion. He had alree by informed several of Mr. Sickles's counsel when he intended to send up the indictment, and was perfectly willing to state pri-vately to them now when he should do so.

then before the court, the counsel of Mr. Sickles again rose. Mr. Stanton stated that it was important that the trial should begin as early as possible, and asked that the case should be set for next Monday. Judge Crawford replied that the court never interfered n such cases unless the District Attorney was unreasonably slow in bringing up the trials. Mr. Stanton then appealed to the District Attorney (Mr. Ould) to fix on Monday next for this case. Mr. Ould replied that it was impossible for him to be ready to try the case at so early a day. Mr. Stanton said that witnesses and counsel for the defence from another State had to be sent for, and inquired whether he was to understand the District At-torney as saying that he would not begin the case on Monday next. Mr. Ould answered that, while he wished to be courteous to counsel, he could not arrange to take up the case before Monday week, Mr. Stanton thought the tense used to be quite immaterial. He merely wished to ascertain the final determination of the District Attorney in regard to the time of the trial, Mr. Ould was willing, in order to show his disposition to accommodate the counsel for the defence, that they should select any subsequent day of the term that might suit them better than Monday week, and he would postpone the case till then Mr. Stanton. "No, sir; we will not postpone it for an hour. Mr. Magruder inquired whether Mr. Ould would consent to fix upon any intermediate day between this and Mon-day week. Mr. Ould again declined. Mr. Stanton then formally signified his acceptance, on the part of the counsel for the defence, of Monday week, the day fixed by the District Attorney, and the court announced that the case would be taken up on Monday, April 4th. During this colloquy the court room was densely filled with anxions spectators, to whom it was, doubtless, a great relisf to hear at last a day set for the opening of this trial. Correspondents for New York papers, in their anxiety to furnish late news concerning the conduct of the case, have repeatedly telegraphed the idlest rumors as positive information. Among other statements, it has been alleged that Ex Senator Badger, of North Carolina, would assist in the prosecution. This is without foundation. So far from having any connection with the Sickles case, we learn that Mr. Budger will leave Washington this morning, not to return until May. We believe that it has not yet been settled whether counsel will be retained to assist the District Attorney in the prosecution.

THE SEVENTH WARD MARKET.-Very general dissatis faction is evinced by the citizens of the Seventh ward at the action of the Board of Aldermen in selecting square 498, which is situated between H and I streets south, immediately west of Four-and-a-half street, as a site fo the new market, which, it is now conceded, must be crected to meet the growing necessities of the people of that section of the city. This square is far south of the real contre of business and population of the 'Island,' and, as far as the vast majority of its inhabitants are concerned, is more remote than the Centre Market. We ave heard a number of available locations m W HO INVENTED THE STEAM-ENGINE; by more central, and in every respect more suitable for a market than the one which the aldermen have chosen. But among those who are most interested in the welfare of the ward, the public reservation formed by the intersection of Virginia avenue with south D street, between Four-and-a-half and Sixth streets, is generally selected as the most eligible spot. It is believed that the power to erect the market here could be obtained without serious difficulty; and the success of such an application would of course obviate the necessity for the expenditure of the large sum proposed in the aldermen's bill. We commend this subject to the sober consideration of the Board of Common Council, hoping that they may act with due regard to the economy of the city's funds and the convenience of the people of the
